What is school?

A school is an educational institution designed to provide learning spaces and learning environments for the teaching of students under the direction of teachers. Most countries have systems of formal education, which is sometimes compulsory. In these systems, Students progress through a series of schools.

Need and Importance of School

At present, human life has become very complicated due to modernization, industrialization, urbanization, increase in population, disintegrated family and excess of needs.

Today man is facing many problems of practical life and without the solution of these problems it has become difficult for man to live but it is not so easy to face these problems.

Versatile knowledge and science for them is required. Therefore, the need of the school is felt only to fulfil the needs.

In the present times the importance of the school is increasing. The school itself is capable of passing on the resources and achievements of the complex society to the new generation.

Highlighting the need and importance of the school, it can be said that "the progress of any nation is not built in legislative assemblies, courts and factories but in schools."

Importance of School for Child

(1) School, the best place for versatility –

Home and family have been called the first school of the child, yet the education that the child receives at home is very limited.

Through this education the child cannot get the knowledge which he gets in the schools. The school provides versatile education to the child so that he can be successful in every sphere of life.

In the school, the child gets specific and detailed knowledge of any subject, therefore, for the education of the child, the school is more important than the home.

(2) Suitable environment for progress and development -

The school presents a suitable and balanced environment for the progress and development of the child.

Due to ignorance, poverty, lack of residence, rumble of machines, overcrowding, social evils etc., the environment of home and neighborhood is immoral, noisy, disorderly and impure, in which getting education of children is not only inappropriate but also impossible.

Schools present a simple, pure and balanced environment suitable for the education of children.

(3) Helpful in maintaining the continuity of the society –

School is a miniature form of the society. In this the social heritage is preserved and passed on to the next generation.

The same knowledge is imparted to the children in the school, which is helpful in the progress and development of both the individual and the society and can maintain its continuity.

(4) Helpful in fulfilling the needs –

Man is a social animal, therefore in the present materialistic era, the needs and desires of a person are increasing day by day.

An educational environment is created in the school according to the interest and need of the child, so that he can fulfil the needs of himself and the society by acquiring various types of knowledge.

(5) Helpful in the huge cultural space –

The cultural heritage of the present time has become very wide, many types of knowledge, skills and methods of working have been included in it.

Individuals find themselves unable to teach such a legacy. So he handed over this work to the school.

(6) School is an important link connecting family life and outside life –

The child is born in the family and there his initial development takes place. By staying in the family, he learns the ideal qualities of service, love, co-operation, obedience and discipline.

Coming out of the family circle, when children come to school, they have to live with children from different homes, religions, castes and communities, as a result of which their outlook becomes broad and the qualities of sociality start developing in them.

Now he does not remain confined to his family life but also takes interest in the activities of outside life.

(7) School is the main means of protection and transmission of social heritage

The progress and development of every society depends on its culture. That's why every society wants to preserve its culture and want to transfer it to its future generation, but this work is not so easy that it can be done by any particular person or any other institution.

This work can be done by the school. Explaining the importance of the school, T.P. Nun has said, "The school should not be a miniature of the whole world, but of the whole human society."

(8) Diffusion of ideals and ideologies-

School has been considered a very important means to spread the ideals and ideologies of the world, therefore the place of the school in all places and states is paramount and proud.

(9) Harmonious development of personality –

Family, home, society and religion etc. are the best means of education but neither they have any definite purpose nor pre-planned program.

Sometimes they have a bad effect on the personality of the child.

On the contrary, the school has a definite purpose and a pre-planned program which has a systematic effect on the personality of the child and the harmonious development of the child's personality.

(10) Creation of educated citizens –

School is the only means through which educated citizens can be created. If all the children of a country are given free and compulsory education till a certain age, then they become permanently literate.

Along with being literate, the qualities of patience, co-operation, responsibility etc. develop in them, in this way a child grows up to become an ideal citizen of the state and society.

Types of school on account on administration

Indian law lay a lot of emphasis on education as depicted in The Right to Education Act, 2009 which focuses on ways to make education accessible to all students. According to the 2020 New Education Policy (NEP), education is now compulsory for children of 3–18 years which was previously for 6–14 years of age. There are many types of schools in India that students and parents can choose according to their preferences, feasibility and convenience. Read on to know more about the different types of schools in India.

Indian Education System

There are four levels of education in India – Pre–primary, Primary, Elementary and Secondary education. The details of the Indian education structure are as follows–

1. Pre–School – Pre–school education is not compulsory for children although if they are provided that then it can help to build a good foundation for children for further education. The Montessori system of education is popular at this level as it helps in the holistic development of children by nurturing their individual qualities.
2. Play Schools – These types of schools in India cater to children who are of age 18 months – 3 years.
3. Kindergarten – Kindergarten classes are divided into lower KG and Upper KG. Lower KG is meant for 3–4 years old whereas upper KG is meant for children between 4–5 years old.
4. Primary School – Primary school is from first to fifth class wherein students enrolled are from 6–10 years of age. Here they are imparted with basics of different subjects that help them to become proficient in further classes.
5. Middle School– Middle school includes classes from fifth to eighth standard. Here are students from 11–14 years of age. Children in these classes move from learning basics to a little higher level of concepts of subjects.
6. Secondary School– This level of education includes classes from ninth to tenth standard. Students are from 14–16 years of age. They get to learn higher–level concepts and get to make decisions for themselves about which subjects to take in further classes according to their interest areas.

7. Senior Secondary– Senior secondary level of education includes classes 11th–12th. Students get to study subjects of their choice and get an opportunity to make up a decision about which course to pursue after their 12th class.

Types of Schools in India

Education is very important when it comes to preparing a child for life. To make sure children are not deprived of this necessity and are able to access it easily, there are many types of schools established in India.

Government Schools

There are many government–run school systems in India as Indian Army Public Schools managed by the Indian army for the children of soldiers, Kendriya Vidyalaya in Urban areas, Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalaya for the gifted students, Kasturba Gandhi Balika Vidyalaya, especially for girls belonging to castes like SC, ST and OBC.

Kendriya Vidyalaya schools were specially established for the children of employees of the Central Government of India. This was done to ensure students are able to study the same syllabus and at the same pace irrespective of the transfer of their parents to any location in the country.

Private Schools

A private school is a school not administered or funded by the government, unlike a public school. They are also known as independent schools, non–governmental, privately funded, or non–state schools. They are usually funded by fees charged at their students.

Children who attend such schools may be there because they (or their parents) are dissatisfied with government–funded schools in their area. They may be selected for their academic prowess, prowess in other fields, or sometimes their religious background. Private schools retain the right to select their students and are funded in whole or in part by charging their students for tuition, rather than relying on taxation through public funding; at some private Schools students may be eligible for a scholarship, lowering this tuition fee, dependent on a student's talents or abilities (e.g., sports scholarship, art scholarship, academic scholarship), need for financial aid, or tax credit scholarships that might be available.

International Schools

All large cities have international schools. Children from outside and those from India attend them due to the quality of the education that is aligned with global standards. International Schools Consultancy, in 2015 estimated that India has around 410 international schools.

According to International Schools Consultancy International schools are those schools which impart curriculum in the English language outside a country whose native language is English and the curriculum is international in its origin. This definition of international schools by ISC is used by many famous publications which also include The Economist.

National Open Schools

According to estimates around 1.4 million students are enrolled in open schools at the secondary and higher secondary level of education.

The National Institute of Open Schooling (NIOS) and Board of Open Schooling and Skill education, Sikkim (BOSSE) help students to complete their education. These types of schools in India provide education up to the upper secondary level for children whose official education has been stopped and who are unable to finish it.

Special-Needs Schools

Meant for physically and mentally challenged students, these schools provide vocational training and informal education to children who are unable to attend proper schools. Going by the law of India to make education accessible to every child there are more than 3000 special needs schools running across the country.

My Experience

I have received my education from this school. I took admission in this school in 6th class in 2015 or have completed 12th in 2022. My experience in this school is very good, all the teachers here teach very well and proper attention is given to all the students here and now there are smart classes also available. Many extracurricular activities are also conducted by which the students are being scouted and their aim is to make the students aware of their moral actions and they are taught to help people in emergency situations. It turns out that he can help people there. With all the teachers here like: Vinita mam, Javendri mam, Sangeeta Gupta mam, Nidhi mam etc all of these teachers are very loving and they all are my idols. they taught me so many things. also I have so many memories of the school.

I would like to advise girls and their parents to get admission in this school because the security of girls here is very good and the teachers here also very good or helpful. This is a government school and its fee is also very low. It is less because the aim of the school is to educate girls.
